

Slag Gallery congratulates Naomi Safran-Hon on her current shows and notable mentions.

| M | A | R | F | A |
| C | O | N | T | E | M | P | O | R | A | R | Y |

Naomi Safran-Hon
Fragments of Place
1/20 - 4/15

Marfa Contemporary | 432 729 3500 |
info@marfacontemporary.org |
www.marfacontemporary.org/
100 East San Antonio St. | Marfa, TX 79843
Hours: 10 a.m.-6 p.m. Wednesday- Saturday 112-4 p.m. Sunday

Naomi Safran-Hon - Installation Views

The Future is Female

11.2016 – 05.2017

Artists: Sanell Aggenbach, Tiffany Carbonneau, Monica Cook, E.V.Day, Gaela Erwin, Vibha Galhotra, Frances Goodman, Jenny Holzer, Nina Katchadourian, Julie Levesque, Hanna Liden, Nandipha Mntambo, Daniella Mooney, Michele Pred, Alison Saar, Naomi Safran-Hon, Kiki Smith, Carrie Mae Weems.

Curated by Chief Curator and Museum Director Alice Gray Stites.

Naomi Safran-Hon - WS: Pink Sweater (with other trash), 2016, acrylic, gouache, lace, cement and archival ink jet print on canvas, 28 x 42 in.

The Preliminary Course and the Matière

by Fritz Horstman

<http://www.theartsection.com/albers---the-matiere>

"Mid-century photography often exploits texture and rhythm in matière-like ways – think of the extraordinarily visually haptic photographs of peeling paint taken by Aaron Siskind, himself a former faculty member at Black Mountain. And there is a whole raft of artists working today, making art that relies in some way on their materials' visual/haptic properties – artists who are aware that the effect of two or more materials cleverly combined is greater than the sum of their parts. A very incomplete list includes David Altmejd, Tom Friedman, Sheilah Hicks, Fischili and Weiss, Sophy Naess, Vik Muniz, Naomi Safran-Hon, Vija Celmins, Leeza Meksins, Martha Burgess, the architect Carlo

Scarpa, and the architecture collaborative
SO-IL."

Naomi Safran-Hon, Detail: *WS: Light Switch
and Coat Rack in Six Parts*, 2016, acrylic, gouache, archival ink jet print, lace and cement on fabric and canvas, 68 x 42 in.

Irina Protopopescu
Slag Contemporary 56 Bogart St.
Brooklyn, NY 11206
T 212 967 9818
Thursday - Sunday 1-6PM
Monday - Wednesday by appointment
irina@slaggallery.com
www.slaggallery.com

Unsubscribe